School of Russian Language, Literature and Arts

<http://www.nhrussianschool.com>

School of Russian Language, Literature and Arts offers Russian language and culture classes for children with different levels of the Russian language proficiency. We have classes for children who already speak Russian and who want to keep the language and learn even more. There are also classes for children who do not speak Russian yet and want to learn it. We also offer music, art and drama classes in Russian. Through participation in various concerts and celebrations, our students learn not only the language but also the traditions of the countries where the Russian language is spoken.

The purpose of this website is to provide students who are starting to learn Russian with a set of images associated with certain Russian words.* Rather than simply providing a list of vocabulary words in English and Russian, this site includes images and cultural explanations in English. In this way, it is hoped, students will start to become aware of mental associations that Russian speakers have with these words, rather than merely associating the Russian words with their English equivalents.

"We had originally created this store for American families who have embraced adopted Russian children as their own. But we quickly discovered that it has a larger, much larger appeal. Our site became the first online Russian children's store in the USA, and we are happy to welcome everyone who finds it interesting."
